$115,828 Service Bill Paid By BYU To Provo City

BRIGHAM Young University paid Provo City $115,828 for services rendered during the past year, according to Provo City Manager Earl Udall. In a statement released Friday the city manager said "the university account is a valuable account and probably makes the difference between Provo's garbage-disposal system and sewer system operating at a profit or in the red.

"THE SEWER and garbage services operate at a slim margin which is kept on the profit side by the university," according to Mr. Udall.

The city manager's statement followed a storm of protest last week by Provoans that the University becomes a liability by removing acres of land from the tax rolls.

Loud protests were made a week ago at a public hearing preceding the annexation of about 60 acres of BYU land into the Provo City limits.

PROVO residents protested the annexation on the grounds that it would be a "shanty town" type of temporary housing and also that it would cost the city money to provide services to the tax-free land.

Figures released by the city Friday show that BYU paid $72,098 for power in 1956; $31,485 for water; $5,591 for garbage disposal and $6,655 for sewer service.

Said Mr. Udall, "It isn't sound reasoning to believe that the University is costing the community when it brings more than 9,000 live 'customers' into the area with money to be spent here."

BYU Coed's Father Dies

Father, Brother Injured enroute To Utah Game

FAMILY pleasure trip ended in tragedy Saturday when an automobile carrying the Claude family of Las Vegas, skidded on icy pavement and ploughed into rear of a truck.

The Abbots were traveling to Provo to see the basketball game between the University of Utah and Brigham Young University, to see their sophomore daughter Janice march with the majorettes, of which she is a bandant.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott and six-year-old son Willie were in the car. Mr. Abbott died Sunday morning in Fillmore. Mrs. Abbott and Willie are in the Latter-day Saints Hospital in Salt Lake City where he is listed in "critical condition with head injuries, and she is receiving medical treatment" for head and neck injuries.

Two other children, a five-year-old girl, Claudia, and a two-year-old baby boy, Ricki, were injured and are now staying in the Heritage Halls with Miss Ab-

THE OTHER children in the Abbott family had remained in Las Vegas.

According to Utah State Highway Patrol officers, the Abbots were in their car over a small hill when Scipio into view of another truck which had gone into a ditch and two trucks which had stopped to help pull it out.

U Melody Writer Receives Award Cougar Song

De D. Sandgren, author of Cougar Fight Song, was presented a scroll by the Associated Students of Brigham Young University Saturday night for his song contribution.

The scroll was presented by the body President Monroe during the BYU-Utah halftime program. Sandgren authored the nationally known fight song ten years ago, the victory dance after the game, the AFROTC Chorus presented a trophy for their regement of the Cougar Song.

Presented by Don Van Noy of D, the trophy was given on basis of effectiveness, spirit, musical quality. The groups entered the KOVO conference judged by Don Jensen, Rich Hall, co-chairmen of the Song Week; Ray Anderson and Don Cox, BYU student and Don Spainhower, announcer.

Judge Gives Student Drivers Warning Concerning Licenses

PROVO CITY Court's Judge R. Meservy this week warned out-of-state students of expiration dates of their states relative to their vehicle registration.

Judge said that although students might be confused by the matter of license expiration, he warned that citations will be given drivers with expired plates from any states.

LET'S BE SOREHEADS

(Editorial)

THE BRIGHAM YOUNG Daily Universe is turning itself into a typical loser in these few lines by being "sorehead" about the quality of refereeing in the Skyline Conference.

Only hitch is that BYU is not a "loser" and a relatively detached view of the officiating situation can be taken.

The sad state of officials in our conference is a national joke, but its effect on the crowd sportsmanship in the conference is far from being a joking matter.

DURING THE PAST three seasons there have been many editorial efforts made with an eye toward starting a move to correct the officiating, but empty promises are all that seem to be forthcoming—the quality of referees certainly hasn't improved.

The Daily Universe charges Skyline Commissioner E. L. Romney for being derelict in his duties of providing this conference with competent officials.

THIS ISSUE has been laughed off in the past as something that will blow over and isn't of real consequence.

Mr. Romney, we challenge you to take the no-consequence attitude in observing the deterioration of sportsmanship among the fans at these basketball contests.

Boos were almost non-existent until poor officiating brought booing into the picture as the accepted thing.

ESPECIALLY TABOO were boos while players took free throws.

This did not happen once in the Smith Fieldhouse during the 1954-55 season, it happened once (when Oklahoma City visited BYU) during the 1955-56 season and now it has become quite the accepted thing—it happened several times during the BYU-Utah game Saturday night.

WHEN COACHES and administrators of various schools voice concern about the school spirit and increasing in booing, it seems they would think of the cause of this discouraging trend.

Officiating has become such a farce in this conference that no one takes the referee seriously. No one considers him a human being.

When officials make as many miscalls, or miss as many fouls as were missed in Saturday night's game, fans blow the lid off the house and the conference prestige slips another notch.

THIS ISN'T something that can be corrected in a year, or even two years, but it seems that some progress should be evident IF CONFERENCE OFFICIALS RECOGNIZE THE PROBLEM AND ARE CONSCIENTIOUSLY WORKING TO CORRECT IT.

The Daily Universe notices that conference officials are inclined to laugh complaints off as "crack-pot griping by sorehead losers."

Mr. Romney, we are not complaining about any games we've lost.

We don't think were soreheads—were actually ashamed that we've kept silent on this issue so long.

ABOVE ALL, we don't think this griping is of the crack-pot variety, but is well-considered and justified.

Perhaps the effort of securing decent referees, Mr. Romney, is worth it to take our conference off the list of laughing stocks.

Most of the schools are proud of the Skyline Conference and are proud of the top-notch teams it produces.

But doesn't the conference look ridiculous when the officials make such spectacles of themselves as they did Saturday, and as they have done at nearly every game in this area this season?

Richard L. Evans Devotional Speaker

Apostle, author and radio announcer Richard L. Evans will speak Tuesday morning to the studentbody and faculty of Brigham Young University.

Member of the Council of the Twelve of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Elder Evans has been noted for his "Spoken Word from Temple Square" program heard nationally for the past 30 years with the Tabernacle Choir and organ from Salt Lake City.

Californians ...

Governor Goodwin Knight To Visit BYU Wednesday

Governor Goodwin J. Knight of California will visit Brigham Young University Wednesday afternoon.

The Governor, who is attending the Republican's Lincoln Day banquet in Salt Lake City Tuesday, will arrive on campus at 3:30 p.m. at which time he will be conducted on a tour of the campus by Dr. Henry Isakson, student coordinator.

At 4 p.m. a reception will be held for the Governor in the Smith Family Living Center by the California Club and the Young Republicans Club. Refreshments will be served.

California Club President Howard Hill has announced that all Californians and other interested students are invited to attend the reception.

Skaters Compete Saturday At Lake

Ice skating competition as part of Snow Carnival week has been set for next Saturday, according to Jeff Circuit, ice skating chairman.

Contests will be held in the boat harbor at 10 a.m. Date for the event was changed due to unforeseen ice conditions.

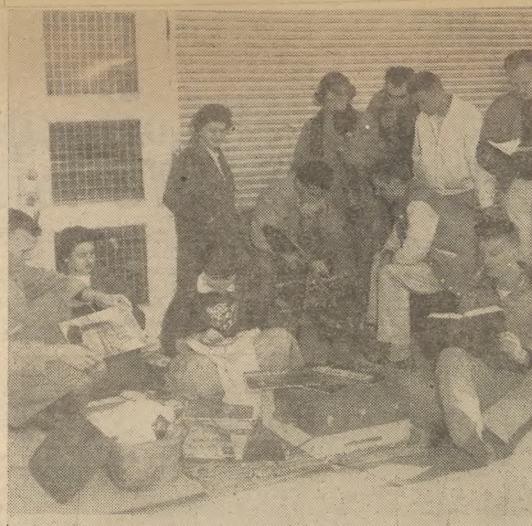

Men and women's speed races, mixed relays, a three-legged race and figure skating are planned.

Interested students may sign up in the Student Coordinator's office, Student Service Center.

Self-Government Maintained By Girls In Campus Housing

by Barbara Cook
Daily Universe Writer
GIRLS LIVING in campus housing facilities are being given an opportunity to democratically govern themselves.

Each hall is responsible for setting up the majority of its rules and regulations.

The governing body, or house council, is composed of elected representatives. The system of election begins the last part of spring quarter after housing assignments have been made for the following school year.

AT THIS time, the girls who will be living in each building meet together and elect a new president to serve the following fall.

The other officers decided to be necessary are elected when the girls return to school. Each hall decides on the number of officers which it needs, but the basic officers which are required are a president, vice president, secretary, and social chairman.

OTHER officers, such as a scholarship chairman, work director and sports director may be elected. Membership of the house council is completed in the election of a girl from each apartment to serve with the officers.

It is this council which begins the work of efficient directing the activities of the hall. One of the first duties which must be completed is that of writing a constitution.

These constitutions, written by each individual hall to take care of its particular needs, are drawn up around certain administration policies and standards of Brigham Young University.

IN THE Heritage Halls, house councils must arrange for the "outside duties" which assignments given to each apartment to help keep the building clean.

One of the better-known duties of the hall councils is that of "campusing" or penalizing those who violate hall rules.

However, the main responsibility of the council, as expressed by Cleo McCracken, faculty advisor to the Inter-House Council, "is to build up the morale of the girls to create a positive attitude among the residents and avoid the need to campusing."

This is reflected in the way which the councils consider the attitude of the girls and the situations involved in the violations.

THE HOUSE councils are also in charge of arranging social functions which are held in each hall. Some activities are birthday parties, exchanges and international.

Another part of the governing body of the girls living in campus housing is the Inter-House Council. This council is composed of the presidents of each of the 24 Heritage Halls, Amanda Knight, Knight-Mangum at Iona House. The group works in close conjunction with the AYU to support many activities sponsored by the group for women students during the year.

Business Teacher To Attend Confab

Dr. Jesse Black, assistant professor of business education at office management, will present a paper on "Research in Student Teaching" in a Chicago convention Friday.

The three-day conference Thursday through Saturday, being held by the National Association of Business Education Teacher Training Institute.

Dr. Black is also a member of the executive board of the United Business Association. The board will hold a meeting Saturday afternoon during the conference.

"What's it like to be

A PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT ENGINEER AT IBM?"

Three years ago, college senior Gerald Maley asked himself this question. Today, an Associate Engineer and leader of a nine-man team, Jerry reviews his experience at IBM and gives some pointers that may be helpful to you in taking the first, most important step in your engineering career.

"What really sold me," says Jerry, "was the way they conducted engineering. I'd expected rooms full of engineers at desks. Instead, I found all the informal friendliness of my college lab."

Gerald, an E.E., came directly to IBM from the University of Buffalo, in 1953. Starting as a Technical Engineer, he was immediately assigned to work, with two others, on designing a small calculator. The supervisor of this project was Dr. R. K. Richards, author of "Arithmetic Operation in Digital Computers." Jerry learned a great deal about computers in a very short time. Incidentally, his particular machine is now going into pro-

(his brother is a mathematician) and is fascinated by these mathematical marvels which are revolutionizing man's ways of doing things in so many fields. He enjoys working on large equipment . . . and on "pulses." "It's more logical," he says. "In computer plays. The latter is his own interest, which is why he is in advanced machine design. He points out that IBM is careful to take these factors into consideration—another reason, perhaps, why turnover at IBM is less than one-sixth the national average.

What about promotions?

When asked about advancement opportunities at IBM, Jerry says, "You can hardly miss in this field and in this company. They tell me sales about double every five years—which in itself makes promotion almost axiomatic." He endorses the IBM policy of promoting from within, with merit the sole criterion. The salary factor, he remembers, was not his first consideration. While excellent, the tremendous advancement potential was far greater importance.

This field is so new work, you can actually see things happening, which is not the case with all electronic equipment today. And it's not all solid math, either. What's more, this field is so new, that pretty soon you're up with everybody else."

Gerald has done recruiting work himself for IBM and believes he understands some of the college senior's problems. "I usually begin an interview by determining a man's interduction. As Jerry says, "It makes an engineer feel good to see his project reach the production stage—and to be able to follow it through."

Promoted to Associate Engineer after 16 months, Jerry is now the leader of a nine-man team. He assigns problems to his group for solution, approves their block diagrams and the models they build. Perhaps an hour a day goes into paper work such as requisitioning equipment for his group and reviewing technical publications, in counseling members of his team and preparing for trips to technical society meetings. Apart from his regular responsibilities, he teaches at night in the IBM school.

Why Jerry chose IBM

Of course, there were other reasons why Jerry selected IBM. He was vitally interested in computers, and IBM was obviously a leader in the field. He comes from a scientific family est," he reports. "Then the diversity of work at IBM enables me to offer him a job which will challenge that interest." Gerald distinguishes between two kinds of engineers—those who like to work on components, such as circuit designs, and those who are interested in the part the component

Promotion almost axiomatic

IBM hopes this message will give you some idea of what it's like to be an E.E. in Product Development at IBM. There are equal opportunities for I.E.'s, M.E.'s, physicists, mathematicians, and liberal arts majors in IBM's many divisions—Research, Manufacturing Engineering, Sales and Technical Service. Why not drop in and discuss IBM with your Placement Director? He can supply our brochure and tell you when IBM will interview on your campus. Meanwhile, our Manager of Engineering Recruitment, R. A. Whitehorn, will be happy to answer your questions. Just write him at IBM, Room 8801 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y.

PLEDGES PERFORM SERVICE—Nautilus social unit members and pledges make valentines for the Primary Children's Hospital as part of their newly instituted goat week program. The new program is designed to bring pledges and members closer together by their performing service for the school, community and church. (Photo by Larry Hepler)

Nautilus Unit Makes Valentines As Part Of Goating Activities

Nautilus social unit members and pledges made valentines for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Primary Children's Hospital at their regular meeting last Thursday night.

This project is part of the newly instituted program for pledging of new members. Previously each goat had to do one-half hour's work for each active member in an effort to bring members and pledges closer together. This year members decided that the same purpose could be accomplished if members and pledges worked on service projects together.

Saturday morning members and goats will meet at 6:45 a.m. and go to the East Sharon Stake house. There they will clean rooms and the baptismal font used by Brigham Young Stake.

Nautilus goats must learn about women's service organizations on campus, according to the new program. Service unit presidents were in attendance at the Thursday meeting and addressed the group, explaining briefly the purpose of the units and qualifications of members.

Pat Strong, studentbody second vice president, also spoke about participation in campus activities.

Leadership training is also being given new members. Each goat is required to pass a test on the proper method of scheduling campus facilities and securing a campus purchase order. She must also learn the location of studentbody officer offices.

The fun of goat week has not been entirely forgotten by Nautilus. Each pledge has a goat mistress for whom she performs humorous duties of pledging. Each goat must entertain as dinner guests prominent campus males and perform such duties as securing shoe sizes of all members of a men's social unit. She must also wash and iron shirts for members of another men's unit to prove her domestic prowess.

"We hope that our new methods may provide a precedent that other units will want to follow. They have certainly proved worthwhile to us," said Judy Stephans, Murray, Nautilus vice president.

Brighams Grab Strangle-Hold On Skyline Scramble Top Slot

by Jerry Cunningham
Brigham Young University has a strangle-hold on the Skyline conference leadership by virtue of their 81-77 victory over Utah, the defending champion.

The Cougars' 7-1 record gives them a commanding lead over Montana and the Utes, who each have a 5-3 mark.

The schedule also favors the high-flying Brigham, who play only two more road games compared with four in the friendly confines of the Smith Field-house.

Wyoming whipped Colorado A&M, 65-56 in Laramie Saturday and Denver edged New Mexico 77-72 in Albuquerque. Thursday found Utah besting Montana 60-48 in Uteville.

The league leaders entertain Wyoming and Colorado A&M in the conference's feature attraction next Friday and Saturday.

That's Rich

by Rich Hall

Despite the report that came out in a Salt Lake City paper Sunday, Brigham Young University actually did win the basketball game Saturday night.

It seems that the University of Utah publicity organs in downtown Salt Lake still can't get the idea that we are in the lead in the Skyline race. The big city sports writers we saw in the press box after the ball game did seem a little glum, and we honestly felt that they had watched the same game we did, but now we can't help but wonder. Maybe they just had the color of the uniforms confused.

Milt Kane had a great night for the Utes, hitting consistently and well, especially when he moved into the post position late in the game. He will no doubt appear on everybody's All-Conference ball club.

However, Kane was about the only bright spot in the visitors ball game. Jerry McCleary and Curt Jensen both managed to hit in double figures, but the Utah scoring was pretty well split up between these three, the rest of the Ute squad being noticeably cold.

Roy Thacker did a top job in keeping both Pearl Pollard and Jack Mannion bottled up in the post slot. Mannion fouled out without scoring and Pollard picked up only three points, being held to one field goal, and one free throw.

John Benson turned in his usual terrific game, both offensively and defensively. While he was covering Kane in the second half, the Utah scoring flash managed to pick up just one field goal.

Harry Anderson picked up thirteen points for his evening's efforts, and called a top floor game.

Tom Steinke, although stopped during the first half by the special defense the Utes trotted out for him, began breaking loose in the second period, very effectively silencing the catcalls he had been receiving from the Utah bench.

Lynn Rowe, hitting for 17 points, managed to bother the visitors no end. He was picking up rebounds off the boards, points when they were needed, and playing a good all around game. It was Rowe who put the Cougars out in front for good on two free shots in the closing minutes.

A very large portion for Saturday night's win must go to Coach Stan Watts. BYU was considered a fourth place team at best this season, but Coach Watts has brought his ball club along to where they are the winningest crew in the conference.

And maybe someday the Skyline Conference will find some officials that aren't unconscious.

Kittens Continue Winning Ways With 78-68 Win Over Papooses

TAKING A PAGE from Big Brother's notebook, the Brigham Young University Kittens survived a last ditch rally by the Ute Papooses, and came up with their seventh straight triumph, 78-68, Saturday night.

Lead by center, Dick Sawyer, the BYU frosh jumped to an early lead. Midway in the second half, Sawyer suffered a sprained ankle.

TAKING OVER when Sawyer left the game, Las Vegas' Don Helm became a ball of fire that the Papoose firemen couldn't put out. In an amazing shooting exhibition, Helm bucketed a total of 27 points.

Five foot eight Jim Rice added fuel to the Kittens' fire. With his ball-hawking and cool dribbling, Rice completely befuddled the Utes.

THE KITTENS staged a spectacular stall in the last four minutes of the game. They controlled the ball so well that the Utes could only hit for a few counters, which did not damage the Kittens' cause.

Utah's only big threat seemed to rest in Gary Chestang, who led the opponents' scoring with 19 points. Keith Ancell tanked 12 for the Papooses and Carl Crisler plunked in 9.

AT THE HALF, the Kittens led 26-35, an 11 point margin which dwindled to just 4 points with 4 minutes left on the clock. But the greenlings pushed it out to ten before the final gun.

The Frosh will play the Dugway Army team on Feb. 15 before the varsity, Colorado A & M game.
